

'Caffiends' get their own espresso lane

Source: Business News
Date: 9 January 2009

ZARRAFFA'S Coffee founder Kenton Campbell was like a kid in a chocolate shop this week at his company's newest store at Worongary.

Mr Campbell, who is still a dab hand at making coffee, donned the headset to try out the company's latest concept, a drivethrough coffee shop.

He says the franchised store has been `going gangbusters' in its first week, vindicating Zarraffa's plans to model a third of its new outlets on the Worongary store.

"It's gone better than we could have imagined," he says.

Coffee waiting time in the drivethrough has been no more than three minutes, he says.

That probably warrants an `espresso' badge.